SPY CAMERAS ON THE JOB

WHO WILL BE NEXT?

At Puretex Knitting Co. in North York, 200 women workers make men's sweaters and shirts. For the last two years, 9 TV cameras have been trained on them all day. From the plant gates, the factory floor and even the washroom doors. Inside his office, the Company President watches separate screens.

Most of the women earn $3.60 to $3.75 an hour, working under tension increased by the cameras' watchful eyes.

On November 13, they went on strike for:

removal of the cameras;
decent pay and better conditions

The issues affect us all:

How far will the bugging go? Does everyone in a position of power - the government, the employer, the RCMP - have an unlimited right to invade our privacy?

Must the workers always be the ones to pay the price for an economic crisis that Business and Government are responsible for?
