

LIBERATION WORKSHOP

LIBERATION WORKSHOP is a series of courses for women conducted by the WOMEN'S PLACE, an organizing centre for women. Through this school we learn about ourselves, about our history, our roles in society, our strengths and our intellectual capabilities.

Each workshop meets once a week at the Women's Place. Date and time for meetings after the first session will be determined by the members of the group.

Classes are open to any woman who registers and who gives $5.00 per course, if possible, in order to keep the workshops running.

Courses begin the week of June 4, Monday, and continue generally for 4 weeks.

Registration will be accepted by mail, or in person until June 1, Friday.

WOMEN AS A MINORITY GROUP

Wednesday, June 6 8:00 pm

In this course we will be looking at the developing change in contemporary North American society from women as individuals with minority status to women as a relatively organized minority group. We will be examining various aspects of life in which women are subordinated, looking at some theories to account for the development of this subordination and considering the extent to which women, despite internal divisions, constitute an organized segment of Canadian society.

Required reading:

MASCULINE-FEMININE by Roszak.
